BPWC Sparks Vacant Lot Clean-up Action

Another vacant lot in Belle Glade was cleaned up and landscaped this past week through the efforts of local citizens, the Business and Professional Woman's Club and the Belle Glade Beautification Committee.

Located between the G.A.C. Finance and Red Shutter buildings on Avenue A, the eyesore was adopted as the project for the year by the BPWC, with Mrs. Ruth Enfinger, chairman of the committee and representative of the club on the Beautification Committee.

Working with Mrs. Enfinger were BPWC members: Mrs. Pearl Taylor, Mrs. Gladys Jones and Mrs. Juanita Croft.

The lot was first cleaned off by the City of Belle Glade and filled in. Then to make a "sod story" short: Pony Phillips, measured the lot for the right amount of it; Lomas Amerine, foreman for Triangle Sod Company, donated it; M. C. Ward, hauled it; Seminole Supply unloaded it and the Belle Glade Jaycees placed it.

BPWC members paid for the landscaping and shrubs, which came to about $150, said Mrs. Enfinger.

'68 Rambler Yearbook Dedicated To Faculty, Students, Citizens

In a student body assembly, Wednesday morning, the staff of the yearbook, Rambler '68, broke with tradition and expressed the originality of their time by dedicating their annual to the staff and faculty of Belle Glade High, and the citizens of Belle Glade. Sponsor for the staff is Mrs. Sue Teets, English teacher and instructor for the Journalism class which writes the weekly Ram Page in the Herald.

WE DEDICATE THE 1968 RAMBLER TO...

MEMORIES OF TODAY
CHALLENGES OF TOMORROW
Remembering, yet leaving—all of it.

The faculty who tried so hard:
The cold, still classrooms—reflecting knowledge—

Knowledge we didn't learn;
Belle Glade—it's flashes of...
Black earth, buildings, fields—

home;
The people, friends or strangers—
Good-by, good-by, good-by.

We reach out to accept tomorrow—
With its reality and responsibility,
Leadership and command—all in our hands.

We choose the road to take.
Where it leads, we're not sure,
But there stands no one to stop us.

Yet, how many roads must we travel,
Before we find the right one?
We all have our hang-ups.
What went before—good and bad.
Learn from both, and try again.

Alone—no, that won't get it.
For we need our fellow man,
And in the words of the wise ones—
"God isn't dead. He isn't even close."

It's not Haight-Ashbury, nor tall white towers—
They're going nowhere.
It's courage, patience, and keeping with it.

That'll make tomorrow be.
And so—we turn and say "Hello,"
To tomorrow... and tomorrow...
And tomorrow.

1st Methodist In Pahokee Burned Mon.

The sanctuary and old Sunday School rooms, of the First Methodist Church of Pahokee, 491 East Main Street, were gutted by fire early Monday morning according to Reverend John A. Briley, pastor, who was notified at 6:15 a.m.

The blaze was spotted by a passing trucker around 5:00 a.m. who called the Pahokee Fire Department from a diner across the street. However, the trucker went on his way before anyone could discover his name or thank him.

"The original buildings of the church built in 1925 by Reverend Joe Toie, who is now in Sebring, Florida, were gutted to the rafters and two pianos and an organ were destroyed along with the church hymnals and the living room furniture which we had upstairs," said Rev. Briley concerning the damages of the fire. "What was left by the fire, was ruined by the water," he added.

The fire did not reach the outlying new Sunday School buildings and the members plan to start from scratch in rebuilding their burned church stated the pastor. Members of the church worked Monday, following the fire, trying to salvage what they could of the ruins.

Li. Raymond Trammel of the Belle Glade Fire Department took two Scott breathing apparatuses and 2 extra canisters which contained chemicals to purify the smoky air in Pahokee, enabling the firemen to enter the buildings.

Electrical wiring is suspected to be the cause of the fire, reported a spokesman for the Pahokee Fire Department Monday afternoon.

As weed killers, hand laborers are just too costly. But they're indispensable for other vital cane growing jobs. So use them for those jobs. Not for weed control.

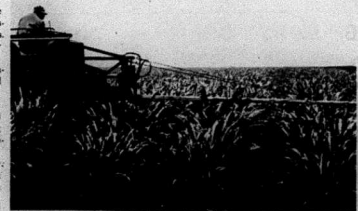

Weed control is the job for Atrazine. The herbicide most recommended for growing clean sugarcane.

The reason is, it works. Atrazine controls most annual broadleaf and grassy weeds, including: pellitory weed, lambquarters, crabgrass, pigweed and others.

And it does it easily, economically. Without damaging the crop. Without irritating the applicator. And rollers or eliminates costly hand labor.

The payoff is a bigger yield. Mainly, because Atrazine cleans sugarcane has all the soil nutrients, moisture and sunlight in itself. And weeds can't stop proper tillering.

In the past, weed control may have been something you got around to if you had the time and the labor.

But not anymore. Not since Atrazine made weed control so profitable.

If you're not using Atrazine yet, you may not be making the most efficient use of your labor and equipment.

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

Superstition, idolatry, and hypocrisy have ample wages but truth goes a begging.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurmon Sensing
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

With many innocent people dead, with more than 100 cities torn by riots and with destruction from looting and arson totaling in the millions of dollars, the United States has suffered a blow that is truly staggering. It behooves every citizen to ponder the meaning of the shameful disaster visited by savagery in the streets and to consider what can be done to prevent such outbreaks in the future.

First, however, it is essential to clear the air of the confusion that spread over the country in the wake of the death of Martin Luther King Jr. Hundreds of thousands of words have been spoken on television and by opportunistic politicians of Dr. King's "dream." But the harsh truth is that the philosophy espoused by the messiah of "social revolution" was not truly non-violent. The campaigns of civil disobedience that he led continued an incitement to riot. In the final days before his shocking death, he was preparing a new mass march in defiance of a court order.

The nation must hope that in the aftermath of the orgy of destruction there is a clearer understanding of the ugly truths of civil disobedience. For more than the word "demagogues" have been shouting "freedom now!" it turns out that "freedom now" means freedom to rob liquor stores, to burn credit records, to pull innocent people from their homes and stab them, to break plate glass windows, and to set on fire stores and dwelling places. The chant of "freedom now," the call to civil disobedience, and the contempt engendered thereby for civility has culminated in internal wreckage of our country on an unprecedented scale.

Part of the tragedy is that civil disobedience has been encouraged by unthinking or unscrupulous men in high places. "Revolution" has been a pet word among big game hunters in government bureaucracy and in the academic world.

Now the American people have seen the true face of "social revolution" in the streets rising above the national capital and other cities of this great country.

Shockingly, there has been very little effort to trace the roots of this violence to the apostles of "non-violence" and to the advocates of civil disobedience. The mass action promoted by the advocates of "social revolution" is alien to the United States, destructive of the true American dream of liberty within the law.

Riots cannot be prevented in the future by paying tribute to rioters, whether in the form of new special privilege legislation or by additional federal hand-outs. The time for that kind of appeasement is past.

The need now is for the strongest defense of law and order, for far-reaching measures to return peace and civic obedience to the troubled cities of the United States.

"If law and order" were an issue a month ago, it certainly is the prime issue in the aftermath of the early April riots. Gradually, over the years, law and order have been treated in America. More and more cities became dangerous to their own inhabitants. Over-nutty cities became battlegrounds as urban terrorists set fires, robbed stores and fired at policemen and firemen.

Property was not adequately protected during the early April riots. Stores were looted while many police stood by and watched. This was not the fault of the police. They needed the support of political authorities for firm anti-looter measures. In future, looters must be warned that they will be shot.

The American people are enormously Luther. They are slow to anger. But they have had enough. Taxpayers are entitled to protection — full protection — of the law. They are entitled to civil government that is determined to smother the cities that would turn great cities and peaceful towns into jungles. But the roots of the riots must also be pulled up. These roots are entangled in the many myths about civil disobedience and social protest. Disorderly marches and lawless occupation of the streets must be stopped. They threaten the peace and well-being of all people of good will and respect for the law.

The major has received the DFC three times for heroic aerial achievement. He earned his second award of the medal last August when he prevented the installation of a potential surface-to-air (SAM) missile site near the demilitarized zone. A week later, he overcame adverse weather, cut through heavy clouds and dodged blistering antiaircraft fire to hit a vital North Vietnamese railroad and earn his third DFC.

Major Aunapu, whose father, F. Aunapu, also resided in Belle Glade, was repeatedly honored with the Air Medal for his expert marksmanship. He completed his combat tour at Korat Royal Thai AFB, Thailand, in November.

The major entered the Air Force in August 1955 and was commissioned through the aviation cadet program. He and his wife, the former Mary K. Aunapu, have two children, Steven and Kevin.

Lisbon, Portugal

Many things impress one in the City of Lisbon. Besides the large number of large, white buildings, are the old buildings of three or four stories with the first completely made of squares of tile. Most of these are blue and white, though a few have yellow and green.

Our guide was proud to tell us that Portugal was the first country to develop a modern tile and ceramics. Many of the older houses have a foot square tile by the front door with the owner's name or a picture.

We saw white peacocks also black and white swans. The baby white swans are yellow like chickens. In the poorer sections, the family wash is done by hand in large vats of water and hung out on balconies, fences or on the grass.

A few miles out of the city is the Royal Palace of Queluz.

Although the column this week may indicate I think pesticides should be outlawed, this isn't the case. They are necessary in today's world. However, if potentially dangerous substances are to be used, it's nice to know in what way they can be dangerous. In a recent column I'll discuss safety factors.

Pesticides are killers of insects, weeds, plants, and sometimes... humans. The one phrase, which indirectly accounts for most deaths from pesticides, in my opinion, is the one that goes something like, "Slacks, Eisenhower, that stuff is used around the house; it can't be that dangerous."

For instance, endrin controls the same elements as dieldrin, all attached to the same group, etc. DDT, by a slight twist in its structure, it becomes five times as poisonous as dieldrin.

The organization was cited for its outstanding proficiency in providing direct communications, navigational aids and air traffic control in the combat zone during a period of greatly expanded tactical operations.

He is assigned AFCS duty at Bien Hoa. The captain was commissioned in 1963 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Texas.

The captain, a graduate of Crooks High School, Sanford, Fla., received a B. S. degree from Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Fla., and earned his M.S. degree at the University of Florida.

Under the Air Force Institute of Technology education program, he is a member of Omega Psi Phi.

Army Second Lieutenant Jeffrey R. Geer, 25, son of William A. Geer, 2303 Burr Hickory Rd., Marietta, Ga., was assigned to the 19th Light Infantry Brigade in Vietnam, March 9.

A liaison officer in the brigade's Headquarters near Long Binh, Lt. Geer entered on active duty in 1966 and was stationed at Ft. Bliss, Texas, prior to his arrival in Vietnam.

A 1960 graduate of Miller County High School in Calquett, Ga., Lt. Geer received a bachelor's business administration degree in 1966 from the University of Georgia at Athens, Ga.

His mother, Mrs. Jeffrey P. Geer, lives on Barton Point Rd., Palatka, Fla.

There are at least fifteen million dollars worth of pictures here and we were required to check our cameras. These pictures are from Italy and France and are of the Renaissance period. The women were dressed in the daintiest of appearance. The furniture was decorated with gold figures as many of the painters were also sculptors.

After passing through many small towns that had narrow streets and always one or more right angle corners, we came to the delightful town of Sintra. The vegetation is more lush than anywhere we have seen. We had lunch here and an hour's shopping.

A few miles from Sintra we visited the Pena Summer Palace located on a mountain top. To trip up the mountain was a hair-raising experience, due to the very narrow road and the endless sharp curves.

This was a long bus and our driver would not let the horn, even dash around the corner. Whenever we met a small European car we would have to back down to a short distance. The view from the castle was well worth the wait.

This castle was built 1000 years ago and took 25 years to build. It was a "summer palace" and only used those months. There were many arches and turrets used and because of the dampness in the air, the marble and limestone had already started to mold. One room had all black furniture inlaid in absolute black. Another room was full of porcelain — even a table and huge candlesticks, beside the usual figurines.

There was a beautiful chapel with a very old wooden altar. We were struck by the beauty of the chapel, which was a masterpiece of the 15th century.

On both sides of the road were cork trees of all sizes. These are stripped of the bark every seven years up to the branches. Grass was planted between the trees in rows, but the cork trees will grow up on the mountain sides.

There were a few olive trees with grape branches. These grape vines now are small, broken stumps about two feet high.

Our lunch was waiting for us along the way — soup, meat, potatoes, hard rolls, fruit, coffee and coffee. When I was half way through, I was told I was eating good meat.

GETTING THE TREATMENT — The outline of the First Baptist Church and connecting buildings is vaguely seen under a fumigation tent erected by Orkin Exterminating Co., Inc. of Belle Glade. The largest job of its kind in the Glades, the tent took 24 hours to erect to cover the estimated one-half million cubic feet of buildings.

The Bard

Ladies Gentlemen and fellow bards. As you all know, I am best qualified among the people of this mighty country to be poet laureate.

In past years, I have written such ballads as The Dying Swan and From Sin to Salvation. Many people have been saved and many have risen from obscurity by listening and following the wisdom of my words.

Other meager bards such as Henry Riccio and Dennis Connell who write fifth and last have been ostracized from their positions.

In closing I would like to ask you to look at the facts and pull lever 1A and elect me, Bruce Miller as poet laureate.

Thank you.

Freedoms

All of the freedoms granted to us in the constitution are being abused by our world today. One that is taking a lot of abuse is the freedom of the press.

Several times in the past few weeks I've heard people complaining about the lack of news coverage of the outstanding events. The front page is so full of murders, robberies, and rapes that they seldom leave space to announce an honor.

The pages are full of violence with minority groups gaining much recognition. These problems need to be presented to the citizens but only if they can be presented factually and not blown out of proportion.

The hippies with their pot make front pages but when an average teen group helps with a community project, it gets a back page if it gets there at all. This gives an unrealistic view to the problem and how it is to be solved. Many people depend on the press to help them make decisions on how to vote and in the opinions they form.

Many times the press only adds fuel to the fire when they report on marches, speeches, or demonstrations because what good do they do if no one knows they are doing it? Violence sometimes comes as a result of the people who are restless just as an insecure student creates a classroom disturbance to get attention.

The press is wrong when they do not stick strictly to the facts but we are equally guilty because we have caused them to do it. Their business is to sell papers, and if we the citizens refuse to buy the paper unless it was good reporting and had a non-violent front page the papers surely would not print it nor the newscasters report it.

We also use our means of communication wrongly. We use our freedom of speech wrong when we spread gossip, spread rumors or express our opinions about something we know nothing about. Even when we get so that we express our opinion against our country in a disrespectful way without trying to understand or offering a solution, we abuse our freedom. The United States will probably be destroyed not by some foreign power, but by those of us who abuse our freedoms so that we weaken our country.

Our individual freedoms are wonderful but let's use them wisely so that we don't hurt other's freedoms for this might cause them to hurt us. America was founded on the belief that freedom belongs to everyone and by controlling our use of freedom this can become true.

My Existence

By SHARON WALLS
I asked myself, my reason for being.
What is my purpose, why do I live?
Is it enough existing, breathing, seeing?
There has to be something, I too can give!

I search my mind, why was I put here,
What is my aim, this plan just for me?
If God and His wisdom will tell me very clear part in this creation, though small it may be.

The world is so big, so much to do
I want to be helpful, where do I go?
There's a battle to fight, a race to be won
So hard is the waiting, so much I must know.

What ever my lot, what ever my reason,
I pray to the God who has wisdom to give,
What ever the need, when ever the season
The world was left better because I did live!

Rams Go To Key West

Friday morning of Easter weekend, the Rams left for Key West to play the Conchs. Taking the trip in the Ram bus, the team arrived around 3:30. Prior to the game, the boys are exercised, and prepared for the game that night.

At 7:30 the game began and it was a hard fought battle. The bottom of the third put the Conchs ahead 3-0, but due to a home run, Gary Remondino, Jorge Rodriguez, and Henry Riccio scored. The Rams ahead 4-3.

The score remained 4-3 until the bottom of the 7th when a Conch on third base scored after a good hit. The game ended 5-4, and the Rams returned to their bunks for a "good night's rest."

Saturday, at 2:00, the Rams took on the Conchs once more. Losing the game, 3-0, they were ready to return home after an enjoyable weekend.

Is it too late?

Some students, especially seniors, have developed the attitude that it is too late to graduate. Some have decided they can make it next year, or can get a job and then go back to school. Others are saying their teachers are being unfair, and they should receive passing grade anyway.

This is a very poor attitude. It is not only showing that they are not trying, but that they really don't care.

The teacher is also faced with a problem. Should he let the student pass so he can finish high school, or take the chance of having the student quit school and not even graduating? The teacher might feel that it is his freedom to let the student pass.

It is, true, why are others passing? Some students should give him a chance these last two six weeks. If the student can pull up his grades and become suddenly more studious, he might deserve to pass. If not, he's not mature enough to even think about graduation.

Also some students have developed an attitude concerning courses other than the required courses needed to pass. They say these aren't needed to graduate, so why bother. But have they never thought about the result of their sitting, or of their succeeding chances in college?

Seniors, especially, are faced with many decisions to make. Some have come to the conclusion of giving up, while others are struggling and fighting their problems, and are determined to succeed.

No, it's not really too late to graduate. As a matter of fact, it's not too late to do anything.

The Hippie Dance

About 150 students, dressed in Hippie outfits Friday night, made the Beta Club dance a big success. Everything was a complete with a great band—"The Rest of Us", colorful lights, Hippie posters, Buddha's, fresh flowers and even incense smoking.

Kathryn Smith, Ivy Lou Barrett, Carol Betts, Barbara Dexter, Dick Hocker and all the others who contributed to the decorations did a good job. Gerald Watson, Andy Ballard, Woody Brandon, Kenny Glass and Skip Lanem provided music that was outstanding in adding to the mood and atmosphere. The band is newly formed but each of the boys puts his all into making it the best!

The students' outfits were authentic, colorful and unusual as "Flower Power" filled the school gym. President Dick Hocker announced the winners after Mr. Troy Sanders, Miss Regina Powell and Miss Joanne Melnik had judged the costumes. 55 gift certificates from Kahlo's and The Golden Charm were given to Eddie Prevatt and Francis McCormick.

An eleven hour "sanctified" hippie joined the couples on the dance floor and also did a go-go on the stage. Although at press time there is no proof, many observers said the flower child had a remarkable resemblance to one of our BGHS teachers!

Congratulations go to all of the Beta Club members for a well planned Friday night.

How To Cut College Cost

Every year, a college education becomes more important for future success, and it also becomes much more expensive. In the school year 1966-67, the average public university student spent approximately a total of $2,000 going to school. At private colleges the total was around $3,100. In the school year 70-71 these averages are expected to rise about $500.

How does one go about meeting costs like these? Here are a few suggestions that could help.

1. Select the right college—Remember that the most expensive colleges are not always the best. Select one to fit your needs.

2. Know all you can about scholarships, jobs, and loans—Check with your chosen colleges and talk with the financial aid directors. They will do all they can to help you.

3. Don't overestimate the amount of help you can get—Grants and scholarships are based not only on ability, but need.

Above all, though, remember that if the family and the student start planning early, any good student can earn a degree. At times the going can be rough, but stick with it. You will be glad you did.

Book Review

In writing the Lord of the Flies, William Golding is trying to prove that the shape of a society depends upon the ethics of the individual and not on any political system.

The Lord of the Flies tells of a group of boys who are stranded on an uninhabited island. Ralph, a sensible boy of twelve, becomes the leader with the help of Piggy, the intellectual. The book tells of the struggles they have keeping the signal fire going, providing food and shelter, and keeping order and civilization in effect.

This is very difficult because Jack, who has a spark of wildness, proceeds to become leader by the use of violence. The true character of the individual shows through. There is the interaction between their once civilized society and the present savage environment. In this struggle some of the boys are murdered because of their unwillingness to conform.

The struggle between Ralph and Jack represents the struggle in modern society for power and control.

A Grand Success

Well readers, the members of the senior class of '68 presented a wonderful and talented play on April 18 and 19 of last week. We promised the members of the audience a provocative and compelling play and I'm sure they will all agree it was that.

The play proved to be a success both nights and will be remembered in the hearts of many in the future.

For those of you who missed this great presentation here's a look at what the play was about, the characters of the play and our directors.

Mrs. Cargill, who was senior, gave a great deal of unmeasured thanks to us. As seniors appreciate her more than she will ever know for a job well done.

"A Man Called Peter," is a play centered around the life of Peter Marshall, a new minister who has come to pastor the church on New York Avenue.

Dr. Marshall's coming to New York Avenue has caused quite an uproar among some of the members of the church and the community.

While the Marshall's are having their own personal problems, they are encountered with seemingly all the other problems in the community.

Dr. Marshall is anxious, willing, and ready to help the youth, while the chairman of the Board of Trustees of the church, Judith Bickle, who still wants to cling to her old-fashioned ideas of religion disagrees wholeheartedly with him.

The youth are all enthused over Dr. Marshall's ways of handling things. While Senator Polk, who has stereotypes about the youth, is fighting him, Mrs. Grant, a woman who has destroyed her home by devoting most of her time and life to building a career for herself, suddenly realizes that something is missing.

She, too, blames Dr. Marshall for the failure in her home. Despite all of the trials that he encounters as pastor of the new church, Dr. Marshall, who has dedicated his life to God's service, seemingly works miracles and solves all the problems.

Mrs. Peele, we see you're a little elated over our class presentation to you. Surprised weren't you. . . .

George, she really did love you. Believe it or not. . . . Smile.

Senator Polk, you gave Dr. Marshall a hard time with your old-fashioned ideas of doing things with the youth of today.

Slicking Point
A small boy in a department store was standing near the escalator watching the moving handrail. "Something Wrong?" asked a saleslady. "Nope," said the boy. "Just waiting for my bubble gum."

Size of the Time
Years ago if you knew a man who stayed in his house all the time and never ventured out, you called him a hermit. Today you call him a doctor.

Manager: "What's your name?"
New Fighter: "Cassius Clay." Manager: But there's already one Cassius Clay.
New Fighter: I know, but since he's not using it, I thought I would.

Pretty Girl
A pretty young girl returned from a date one evening very excited. "Mother," she exclaimed, "I know John is the man for me. 'Everytime he takes me in his arms I can hear his heart beating.' You'd better be careful," warned her mother. "Your father loved me that way for a year with a dollar watch."
